have such a tenderness for. We published day or two ago the story of the Fitzpatrick family in Texas. Our columns every day contain incidents as thrilling and heartrending. The attack on a scouting party, led by Colonel Forsyth, in October, 1868, is fresh in all memorles-the cunning treachery of the Inlian foe, the surrounding of Forsyth's men on a sand island, the long four days of starvation and intolerable broiling under the hot sun, the brave defence, and finally the rescue by a detachment of Colonel Bankhead's troops. Where can we find such cruelties practised upon Indians as were then practised upon Forsyth's mea-cruelties under which some of the poor fellows went mad and died? All the arguments that the enemies of Sheridan can raise against him on the ground of barbarity can amount to nothing. When dealing with such a cruel foe as the Indian it is barbarity to the white cettlers to treat him leniently.

The Value of Public Journals, The cash value of the public press has been Illustrated recently by the sale of the Neue Freie Presse, a liberal democratic organ of Vienna. The price realized by the proprietors was two and a half millions of florins, or about one million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars in gold. The new enterprise consists of a joint stock company, whose statutes and regulations have been approved of by the Minister of the Interior, which fact indicates that governmental influence will not be altogether foreign to the tenor of the paper in future. The promoters of the Neue Freie Presse. Messrs. Etienne, Werthner and Dr. Friedlander, were fully qualified for the task that they had taken in han I, which fact was proved by their journal speedily becoming the greatest advertising medium in Austria. It being a patent fact that no journal can exist at the present day unless favored by the advertising public, their chief object was to render their journal acceptable to all, and thus penetrate to the remotest corners of the empire. The above facts are the vouchers of their success. Mr. Etienne and Dr. Friedlander remain on the staff during the first five years of the new company's operation, at salaries that amply prove the value of their journalistic capabilities. On perusing the German journals generally, and especially the Austrian, the fact becomes self-evident that the light of progress is dawning upon them, and although they may not be quite up to the mark of American journalism, still there is evidence of a decided improvement on the old system.

AN IRISH MEMBER'S EXPERIENCES IN IRE-LAND. -Mr. Bernal Osborne experienced an exciting prelude to an active Parliamentary life the very day of his return for Waterford. Ireland. His new-found constituents pressed on him in a body at his hotel, so that in order to avoid their attentions he was forced to run up stairs, scramble through a skylight to the roof and skip over a couple of neighboring housetops. During this trip he fell into a large tank of water which was placed near the foof of one of the houses for use in case of fire. He managed to get out with whole bones and a terribly acute rhenmatism. On the 12th of March he was unable to take his seat in the House of Commons in consequence of his filness. After such initiatory feats he should certainly be able to "reach his seat." The "best fellows in the world," those Irish electors, and quick and sharp around the ballot boxes or in the drawing room. Whether at home or abroad, in Waterford, in Tipperary, in New York or in Albany, they go for smart work, the constitution, charters and cold water, with the water always on the outside, as in Mr. Osborne's case,

THE PROPOSED FUNDING BILL AND THE WEST .- The Western press are highly indigpant at the secret circular emanating from the national banks for the purpose of influencing Congressional action against the proposed Funding bill. The Chicago Republican is particularly outspoken on the subject, remarking, in the course of a long editorial, that the combination of the national banks in opposition to the Funding bill will fail. It warns the House of Representatives against this scheme of the banks, and adds :- "The people of the United States are against all who will speak for, vote for, or openly advocate a removal of the restriction of the Funding bill, as passed by the Senate. The Representative in Congress who records are vote in .avor of the project of the banks will be recollected at the ballot box." Western Congressmen will make a note and govern themselves accordingly.

WHAT BECOMES OF THE MONROE DOC-TRINE?-If the United States Senate rejects the application of St. Demingo for admissionmade by her own government and sanctioned by an almost unanimous vote of her peoplewhen no nation has objected, how can we object to the course of Spain upon the Cuban question? If Cuba was free to-day could we admit her, upon application, as a territory, after having rejected the application of St. Domingo? Can the United States, if we reject the republie of St. Domingo, object to any European Powers taking her or any other country on this Continent that may apply to them as Mexico did when France sent Maximilian?

LETTER FROM A NAVY CADET. - Cadet Madison Campbell Vinton, aged fourteen, writes to the Springfield (Missouri) Leader declaring that he does not believe that Representative Boyd received "one red cent" for selecting him for a naval cadetship, as had been charged. The young cadet smartly adds :-

I have often heard my father speak of Pony Boyd and himself being old playmates, and from this acquaintance and friendship. I believe, arose the idea of placing me at the havy school, where I shall carnessty try to merit the esteem of one who has so kindly honored and so gentlemanly remembered my father.

The editor of the Leader has promptly withdrawn the accusation. This whole business of cadet selling is a small potato business compared with the gigantic jobs and land swindles, involving millions, that certain members of Congress are notoriously engaged in. When the big cancers of corruption are extirpated from the Congressional body then it will be time to make a fuss about such little fleabites as thousand dollar cadetships.

CHANGE OF DESTINATION. -The Louisville Journal-Courier announces that Alexander H. Stephens is going to Washington. He has been going to heaven, according to the papers, for the last twelve months. It is strange that he should now be going to the "other place." | western coast of Greece.

Other witnesses were brought up to testify to the good conduct of the Prince as an officer. THE PRISONER EXCUSES

While one of the lawyers for the prosecution was conducting the cross-examination of the witnesses he used an expression offensive to the Prince, who violently interrupted the proceedings, and turning to the lawyer denounced bim and his party as a faction. RECRIMINATION.

M. Fonvielle, terribly excited, rose and called the Prince an assassin.

This caused great confusion among the spectators and in the court. Fouvielle was forcibly taken out by the gendarmes. The Procureur General demanded the punishment of Fonvielle.

The Court decided to posinone the consideration of the matter until the end of the sitting.

LEGAL ARGUMENT. M. Floquet then commenced the argument for the prosecution. He reviewed the lives of Noir, Fonvielle and Prince Bonaparte; pointed out the differences in their characters; dweit on the reputation of the Prince as a man of violence; asserted that he was known to have killed four men, and related how he left the military service without permission in 1849, for which Louis Napoleon dismissed him from the army.

EXCITED AGAIN. At this point the Prince became greatly excited and exclaimed that there was a plot to aggravate him. He was severely reprimanded by the court for interrupting the counsel.

PUNISHED FOR CONTEMPT. At the conclusion of the arguments for the prosecution M. Fonvielle was brought in, and the presiding Judge sentenced him to ten days' confinement for contempt of court. The closing arguments will be continued to-mor-

Order of the day for Friday week:—

Whereas it has been many years the policy of the innerial government to develop an enlarged and liberal system of trails with foreign nations and to open the markets of the United Kingdom for the admission of the chief natural products of those countries free of duty; and whereas in pursuance of such enlarged policy the imperial government, with the consent and decree of the British North American colonies, negotiated in March, 1804, a treaty of commerce with the United States for the admission duty free of the natural productions of both countries, which was followed with the most beneficial results to the agricultural, fishing, mining, lumbering and shipping interests of this country; and whereas the United States government, influenced by circumstances to which it is unnecessary now particularly to refer, in 1806 thought it to turnizate said treaty of commerce and to re-enforce the duties on the chief productions of the provinces afore-said, the the great loss and injury of the people of Nova Scotia; and whereas the Legislature of this province, in seasion in 1806, was invited to give assent to the scheme confederating the aforesaid British North American provinces as a sure and cortain means of securing a new reciprocity treaty with the United States, with all its attendant beneats to the trade and industry of this province; and whereas, nearly three years have elapsed since the aforesaid provinces were confederated, and it does not appear that any effort has yet been made, either by the imperial or Dominion authorities to renew said treaty of commerce with the United States, with all its attendant beneats to the irade and industry of this province; and whereas the special or the provinces were confederated, and it does not appear that any effort has yet been made, either by the imperial or Dominion authorities to renew said treaty of commerce with the United States; but on the contrary, it has been proposed to adopt a so-called national policy, which, if fully carried ou

The striking out of the five sections rids it of saveral of its most repulsive features. They were too strong for Congress to swallow. Many thought the House would never pass this bill in any form, and that its clear invasion of the constitution would kill it. We cannot say what the Senate will do with it; but this we can say, if it passes, and then should receive the signature of the Prestient and become a law, it will not meet the wishes or answer the expectations of its authors. BALLS LAST NIGHT.

Everett Rooms surpassed any other, and the season of French balls may be said to have ended with a nourish, and a most successful one. It may be recorded that the ball hast night was as orderly as any ball we have had this season. There was no dis turbance, as the class of people who assembled at the rooms was an effectual preventive to any such thing. This is only another proof that French balls, against which so much has been said, can be conducted properly, and, no doubt, in future years they will not encounter such serious opposition as they have intherto. It was a scene of unalloyed mirth. A thousand nimble feet, stepping to the enchanted music of Offenbaca, led by Gaffre, and laughter keeping time to the popping of champagne corks. At twelve o'ctock there was a perfect jam, and at one moment it was a difficult matter to dance at all. But the police arrangements, under charge of Captain Burden, made way for the dance, and everybody was comfortable. And it may be said to the credit of Charles Edgar, who got up the ball, that he succeeded in getting a more respectable assemblage than has been seen at any French ball thus far.

Among the most prominent of those who were there may be mentioned Isaac Denbech, F. Serake, W. Guernsey, P. Kass, Joe Aronson and Nathan W. McCasolin, J. Gooper, Henry Strouse, J. Eritton, W. McCasolin, J. Frowe, Young Dilks and Julius Aronson. There was a numerous attendance of theatrical ladies. the rooms was an effectual preventive to any such Amis de La Galete.

This popular association held its ball at the Ger mania Assembly Rooms last night, and the affair was one of considerable joility and fun. It has always, since it first began to dance the light fantas its reunions, and the festivity of last evening was by no means an exception to the ing was by no means an exception to the general rule. There was a goodly attendance of ladies and gentlemen, and everything passed off as smoothly and as harmoniously as could be desired by the most fastidious gaiest lover in the world. Everybody who went to the ball went to make the most of it, and the bilarity and enjoyment of the entertainment were, as a matter of course, immease. The goy dames did not go home till the wee hours of the morning.

Lean Women's Bull. In these days of heavy weights, when fat men pull the scales at 275 pounds, a 'lean women's ball' is certainly something that cannot be despised There was one last night at No. 193 Rowery, but whether it justified its title is a question which the speciators present were at a loss to answer to their own or anybody else's satisfaction. There were many who certainly were lean, some even cadaver ous, but there were also many who would not have attracted attention on account of the sparse carnal covering of their bones in any ball anywhere. It may be that the really lean females who abound in the metropolis, and who might have been there had they seen fit, were rather too bashind to undergo the ordeal of a public exhibition; and it may be that many of them were known to their friends as "full, round and buxom," and who, in order to attend en "bole, would have been compelled to divest themselves of various things which nature did not give them, but which shopkeepers know who did. The festivity, however, was not without its attraction, and the fat and the lean and rare and the medium mascalines who graced the ball with their presence enjoyed themselves as best they could. What the gross weight of the lean folks there would have made is a mystery, as the scales were not much used, and nobody seemed tuchned to make the test. ous, but there were also many who would not have

A lecture was delivered last evening by Dr. J. H. Rogers, at the Cooper Institute, before a moderate andlence, who listened with much attention to his remarks on the advent of St. Patrick and Catholic Ireland, giving civilization to England and America. The lecturer slinded to the dawn of the civilization in Erm which then spread to Eng-land, and also to the introduction by the Greeks of hand, and also to the introduction by the Greeks of those rare beauties of sculpture, engraving and architecture common to the Phoenicians, the remains of which astonish the antiquary, as showing traces of a civilization superior in those early days to any in Northern Europe. He also spoke of the benigh inducences of the Catholic religion in homonizing the hordes that peopled the wilds of Briton, a religion that first took root in Ireland, and, like a goodly tree, spread its sheltering branches over benighted Europe.

The Coming Race for Its Possession.

Important Meeting of the New York Yacht Club - Terms of the Race Decided On.

An important meeting of the New York Yachs Club was held last evening at Delmonico's, the object being to fix the terms upon which Mr. Ashbury the owner of the English yacht Cambria, should compete for the possession of the cup won by the America. The subject at issue was whether the New York Yacht Club was to select one vessel which should race Mr. Ashbury's yacht Cambris, of which should race are assembly a yacut camoria, or whether, as the America had won the cup against the whole Royal Yacht Club squadron of England. t should not be considered necessary for Mr. Ashphry to enter the Cambria against the fleet of the New York Yacht Club. The question was of such importance that there was a full attendance of memohry to enter the Cambris against the feet of the New York Yacht Club. The question was of such importance that there was a full attendance of members at the meeting last night, and the utmost to lerest was manifested in the proceedings.

Commodore Steeboins presided and Mr. Morton officiated as secretary. The owners of all the principal yachts were present. The discussion was participated in pretty generally, but Commodore Steeboins, Mr. Schuyler, chairman of the committee formerly appointed to arrange the terms of a race with Mr. Ashbury, and Mr. Grinnell, spoke as most length. The Subject as to whether it should be a contest of THE CAMBRIA AGAINST ONE AMERICAN YACHT FORGER forward an animated between sets to whether or not the committee appointed by the New York Yacht Club had not committed themselves to race the English yacht on these terms; if they had, one member contended, it would be the same to ask Mr. Ashbury to race his yacht against all vessels of the New York Yacht Club as to have asked Tom sayers to fight all the prize lighters in the United States. This view of the case caused much laughter, but was objected to on the very strong ground that the America won the dap against litteen English yacht.—Intal is, against the whole squadron of the Royal Yacht Club. It them became simply a question of honor as to whether the correspondence watch had passed between the committee and Mr. Ashbury had committee the New York Yacht Club to select one vessel from their squadron to decide with the Cambris hie possession of the cup. It was contended that the spoke and Mr. Ashbury had committee the New York Yacht Club to select one vessel from their squadron to decide with the Cambris hole processes and Mr. Ashbury had committee to whether the correspondence which had passed between the committee and Mr. Ashbury had committee for the cup in a race for this sup, the New York Yacat Club was prepared to allow home all to elect the question of the relative superiority of England and America in the naval architecture of
